5. Rights of the data subject

As a subject of data processing, you benefit from a number of rights. Specifically:

The right to be informed: You have the right to obtain information about the data we have collected about you.

The right to rectification and erasure: You can demand that we correct any incorrect data and – insofar as the legal requirements are met – erase your data.

The right to restrict processing: Insofar as the legal requirements are met, you can demand that we restrict the processing of your data.

The right to data portability: If you have provided us with data on the basis of a contract or consent, you may, insofar as the legal requirements are met, demand that we send you the data you have provided in a structured, common and machine-readable format or that we transfer it to another responsible party.

Objection to data processing on the legal basis of "legitimate interest": You have the right to object to data processing by us at any time for reasons arising from your particular situation, insofar as this rests on the legal basis of "legitimate interest". If you exercise your right to object, we will stop processing your data unless we can demonstrate – in accordance with the legal requirements – compelling reasons worthy of protection for the further processing that outweigh your rights.

Objection to data processing for the purpose of direct marketing: If we process your personal data on the legal basis of "legitimate interest" for the purpose of direct marketing, you have the right to object to this processing at any time.

Withdrawal of consent: If you have given us consent to process your data, you can withdraw this consent at any time with future effect. The lawfulness of the processing of your data up until the withdrawal remains unaffected by this.

The right to lodge a complaint with a supervisory authority: You can also lodge a complaint with the competent supervisory authority if you believe that the processing of your data violates applicable law. To do this, you can contact the data protection authority responsible for your place of residence or for your country or the data protection authority responsible for us.

Contacting us and exercising your rights: Furthermore, you can contact us free of charge if you have any questions about the processing of your personal data, your rights as a data subject and any consent you may have given. To exercise any of your aforementioned rights, please contact us at the address given above in the section "Responsible body".

When doing so, please ensure that it is possible for us to clearly identify you. When withdrawing consent, you can also use the same contact method that you used when giving your consent.

6. Status
